WARNING

EDILTEC offers and advertises its products for particular applications. However, it is up to the end user to carry out the appropriate tests to determine the suitability of the product for the application envisaged. The purchaser is responsible for the final decision about the suitability of the product when laid. EDILTEC, as manufacturer or distributor of the materials, does not exercise any control over the installation of the products in its range and does not assume any responsibility with regard to photographs, drawings and literature appearing in its commercial technical documentation. EDILTEC reserves the right to make any changes, improvements or variations to its products and publications that may be considered necessary, at any time and without prior notice. Products must be stored in their original packaging and in covered premises, in order to avoid exposure to water, bad weather and direct sunlight. On site, if there is a risk of unexpected storms, it is good practice to cover both the product to be applied, and the product when already applied, with polythene sheets. Cellular plastic materials comprising POLIISO panels or X-FOAM boards contain a flame-retardant which prevents them igniting accidentally if exposed to a small source of heat, but they are combustible and will burn rapidly if exposed to an intense flame.

EDILTEC accepts only purchase orders complete with sales conditions, communicated in writing by the end customer or the sales agent. If this is not the case, the company declines all responsibility for goods and/or return conditions not complying with requirements.
